Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from A Rectorial Address: Delivered to the Students in the University of Aberdeen, 6th June, 1912 Ladies and Gentlemen: Rectorial addresses are generally of a character which appeals more to the mature and educated men and women of the world than to university students still under instruction, but I propose to speak today to those who are soon to leave their alma mater and plunge, sink or swim, into the tempestuous sea of life. Many of those I see before me are buoyant with hope, as they should be, that they may in their day and generation do the State some service, or at least lead honorable lives, and be in greater or less degree useful to their fellows or remembered as leaving behind them memories of the best of a good man's life, those little nameless, unremembered acts of kindness and of love. The start in life is of vital importance - a good beginning half the battle - and, keeping in mind that no gain is made where no pleasure is taken, it is unfortunate if either young man or woman has to start and spend youth struggling against inclination. With wind and tide fair in your sail, no doubt you make fair seaway, but in the teeth of a baith to sail, it makes an unco leeway.
